

Reflections of a Regiment

ORDER FORM

Editors Justine Taylor & Ian Denning

- Foreword General Sir Richard Barrons
- Preface Professor Sir Hew Strachan

This handsome new photography book, showcasing the HAC's collections and highlighting its contribution to the Great War, has been jointly published by the HAC and Third Millennium.

Book specifications: hardback • 250 x 250 mm • 192 pages printed in colour • 338 illustrations • c.30,000 words • Price £35.00

A key centenary project, this publication's extensive illustrations have been principally drawn from the HAC's photographic archives, supplemented by reproductions of items from other treasured collections. A striking set of images give readers a varied view of the Great War as experienced by a unique body of, for the most part, volunteer reserve soldiers. The book reveals and reflects upon the contribution of an historic regiment and portrays a cast of characters that comprised its membership.

Seven HAC units - two infantry battalions and five artillery batteries - were mobilised during the Great War. Nearly 13,000 men served, around 4,000 members were commissioned into other units and over 1,600 members died serving in HAC units, or serving with other units of the armed forces.
